

College of Education

TUITION & FEES YOU CAN AFFORD

- $291.30 per credit hour for resident graduate students (subject to change)
- $352.28 per credit hour for non-resident graduate students (subject to change)
- $40 for Graduate School application fee (first time admission to NMSU)
- $35 per credit hour fee for Distance Education courses.
- $20 for first time non-degree application

CHECK US OUT

NMSU College of Education
<https://education.nmsu.edu/>
Department of Curriculum & Instruction
<https://ci.nmsu.edu/>

“Learning and achievement outcomes for ethnically and culturally diverse students should include more than cognitive performances in academic subjects and standardized tests scores. Moral, social, cultural, personal, and political developments are also important. All of these are essential to the healthy and complete functioning of human beings and societies.” – Geneva Gay

OVERVIEW

Teachers acknowledge the need to develop more in-depth inquiry to learn more about how to communicate with school leaders and wanting leaders to also become social and political agents who embrace a culturally relevant leadership practice, one that links culturally relevant and anti-racist pedagogy to “explore the yet-untapped possibilities of speaking across areas of theory, research, and practice within the field of education (Douglas-Horsford, Grossland, & Gunn, 2011, p. 582).

FOR MORE INFORMATION

Dr. Judith Flores Carmona
New Mexico State University
P.O. 30001, MSC 3CUR
Las Cruces, NM 88003-8001
Office: (575) 646-4377
Fax: 575-646-5436
Email: judithfc@nmsu.edu

Department of Curriculum & Instruction (C & I)

Master of Arts in C&I with a Concentration in Multicultural Education

MULTICULTURAL EDUCATION PROSPECTIVE STUDENTS

This program is for working professionals (teachers and leaders) and for students who wish to embark on the pathway toward a doctoral degree in C&I or ELA. The MA will provide students the opportunity to bridge culturally responsive practices in teaching and in leadership. The courses are offered in a sequence to build the understanding and skills needed to plan and carry out the action research project in EDUC 520. This MA will also serve as a pathway to the Doctorate in C&I (Critical Pedagogy) or ELA (PK-12 or Higher Education Administration)

PROGRAM MISSION

This Master of Arts mission is to provide advanced practical training to prepare effective professional educators, classroom teachers and school leaders, to promote meaningful outcomes in schools and communities by becoming outstanding, effective servant-leader educators and social change agents towards equity, social change and social justice.

PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

CORE Courses (21 credits)

SPED 510: Current Issues in Special Education
EDUC 515: Multicultural Education
EDUC 516: Curriculum and Pedagogy (Culturally Responsive Pedagogy)
EDUC 518: Technology and Pedagogy
EDUC 519: Research Curriculum and Pedagogy (Research for EDUC 520)
EDUC 520: Action Research Project
EDUC 595: Special Topics: Education Policy through a Native American Education lens OR BIL 520: Issues in schooling for Bilingual Learners OR rotate based on faculty specialization.

(Three-Four courses in the same minor, 9-12 credits, ALL online)

ELA Minor in Higher Ed Administration

ELA 540: Management of Student Services
ELA 550: Higher Education Law
ELA 555: Higher Education Finance and Funding
ELA 582: Community College Administration OR ELA 563: Higher Education Administration

ELA Minor in PK-12 Administration

ELA 570: Educational Leadership Supervision, and Evaluation
ELA 575: The Principalship
ELA 576: Educational Financial Management
ELA 579: Public School Law

GETTING STARTED IS EASY

To start your online MA program,

1. Apply to the NMSU Graduate School. Access the application and instructions at <http://gradschool.nmsu.edu>.
2. Then submit the following to the College of Education, Department of C & I:
 - a. Application form
 - b. Verification of GPA 3.0 (unofficial transcripts needed)
 - c. Verification of one year of teaching experience (or equivalent)
 - d. Professional resume

Please email your complete application to Dr. Judith Flores Carmona at judithfc@nmsu.edu

Note: Acceptance to the Graduate School does not imply acceptance in the Multicultural Education program

